

Robert Fink
rwfwcb

2FA or Nay?

I enabled 2 factor authentication for Twitter.com.

I get on twitter a few times a day on average.

I used 2FA 8 times to log into my Twitter account.

The device I used was my Macbook Pro.

I like the extra security that 2FA provided. I didn't feel it was an inconvenience needing to have my phone around to log in. My phone is usually close by anyway. Social media is your online identity, and I do not want anyone getting access to my account to post unprofessional or potentially malicious tweets. I feel like the extra security this provides is worth the extra effort.

I will be keeping 2FA enabled on my Twitter account.

Yes I will be enabling 2FA on more of the services I use. Microsoft Azure is 1 that I see specifically along with some others.